AFTER THE BOSSES.

One by one we see the Democratic editors breaking forth with significant rebukes of their party leaders and managers. Several have already been noted by the Telegram, but none are more to the point than that given by George Byrne, late Democratic candidate for Congress. He says in his Scimitar:

"For years the party has had no leader that had the foresight to propose an issue or the courage to grasp one forced upon him by the opposition, and the consequence has been a succession of defeats that have left the party a helpless, disorganized mass, with no resemblance to the virile, forceful body it should be."

"Though issues—strong, potent, peculiarly plentiful in the late campaign, the leaders chose the stealthy sneaking, gumshoe method of fighting rather than the manly, outspoken, vote-making style that would have kept the enemy upon the defensive, and even in defeat would have left the democracy in excellent condition for the next trial at arms."

It is right that the Democratic papers should wake up and better late than never. The Telegram has repeatedly contended that the leadership of Democracy did Democracy no good. It has been demonstrated time and again, but perhaps not so generally as in the last election in this state. Two years ago marked it strongly in some localities as many a Democratic candidate at that time learned after it was too late. The same is true as to the campaign just ended. While the main trouble is Democracy itself, yet strong auxiliaries to the trouble are the present Democratic leaders, wherever found in the state.

From the present tone of these forceful editorial writers, who have at last the courage of their convictions and are not hesitating to express them, these rebukes mean a general housecleaning in the Democratic camp. They mean more; they portend speedy disruption and destruction of the Democratic party, for the policy of the Democratic bosses has ever been rule or ruin, and, as they are destined to rule no longer in their party, they will proceed to ruin the party with a vengeance.

However, it is not our fight, though we have contended and now do so that the rank and file of the Democratic party ought to have fair treatment at the hand of its bosses. But, so boss-ridden had it become that even some of the more active of the rank and file became so tied up that open rebellion against the bosses was simply out of the question. But now that there has been an awakening all but a few servile Democratic editors are taking a courageous stand against the bosses.

COMMUTERS CAR TICKETS.

Workingmen who reside in parts of Adamston and work in the Grasselli industrial addition have to pay 15 cents car fare to ride from their homes to their places of work and 15 cents more to ride from their places of work to their homes. The workingman who resides in Grasselli and is employed in Adamston has to pay the same amount of money to get to his work and back. This seems to be a little hard on tion could be something similar to the management of the public schools by the boards of education and kept such as to provide a sphere of refinement and decorum within its jurisdiction.

A stray hundred thousand dollars or so will provide an institution of this kind for this city and the people will maintain it by yearly club dues which could be within the reach of all. Philanthropists, please take notice.

The Jamestown Exposition will be a reality in a few months. It will afford an opportunity to a great many West Virginians to see a real world's fair. Thousands in this state have never seen anything of the kind and have but little idea of the magnitude and grandeur of an exposition of international character. For this reason Jamestown has a right to look to West Virginia for a large representation and the Telegram believes Jamestown will not be disappointed in this respect. The cost of travel to and from the big fair will come within the reach of all, and as the fair will be an education that none can afford to miss, the Telegram hopes to have the pleasure of announcing that every family in Harrison county attended the exposition. It is an educator, remember, none should fail to take advantage of.

Sportsmen of the state are taking steps today at a meeting in the assembly room of the Waldo hotel, to form a state organization for the protection of game and fish within the state. The project is a most commendable one and the association should have a successful and enthusiastic existence. It is one thing to hunt and fish within certain defined limitations and entirely another to maliciously destroy the creatures which the Infinite has provided for man's welfare and happiness. The Telegram hopes along with others that this organization will be one that will accomplish much good in the objects for which it is formed.

The Democrats showed their unfriendliness to labor by their effort to defeat John Nugent, president of the State Federation of Labor, for the legislature. If they had had their way about it, Mr. Nugent would not have been elected. Whether or not Mr. Nugent is chosen speaker of the House of Delegates signifies nothing so far as the attitude of the Republican party toward labor is concerned. That attitude was proven to be favorable to the laboring man, when Nugent was elected by the Republican party. Democracy also showed its hostility to labor, when it tried so hard to defeat labor's high representative.

An investigating committee should be appointed in reference to the closing of the city crematory six days in the week. This committee ought to be authorized to look into health and sanitary conditions and report to council with recommendations. Certainly, the crematory ought not to be closed six days in the week, if there is anything to justify its being operated more days in the week. It is evident the order closing it was not based on any careful consideration of the subject from a sanitary viewpoint.

If the editor of the Democratic paper, which so bitterly denounces the tax laws, has paid his taxes to the sheriff, he has also come down the court house steps chuckling over the good the tax laws have done him. It is the same with a great host of Democrats and Republicans alike and they have no kick coming. They will tell you so, if you but ask them. Suppose you ask the editor of the News about the saving to him the new tax laws have brought.

Should there be any revision of the tariff, it will be such as will benefit the people of the nation and not that sort that brings hard times, as was the case, when the Democrats tinkered with it. The country said leave the tariff in the hands of its friends. If it needs any revision, they will see to it and do it in the right way. So, then, why should Democratic editors worry over the report that there is to be a revision?

The work laid out to be done in the city as to the streets and pipe lines ought to be pushed now as speedily as possible, so that it may be completed before winter sets in in good earnest. It is cheaper to do the work in good weather than in bad and also the work can be done so much better. Extra force, if necessary, should be put on.

The country has not yet gone to the damnation howls as the Democratic campaign orators predicted it would, in the event of the election of Republicans. Instead, it appears to be getting better all the time, with wages ever increasing. This is it shown once more that the calamity howl no longer takes with the American people.

The Charleston Mail charges that the Chilton gang in Kanawha county offered ten dollars apiece for votes, so desperate was Democracy down there. But, of course, there will be no intimation of this in any Democratic paper in this section of the state. It is something they very carefully overlook. They will not give it even as a news item.

The Democratic party does not now even insist that the Republicans should do anything at all with the new tax laws. Democracy has evidently concluded the new tax laws are all right, or will be, when the Republicans put the finishing touches on them.
